Why this work is important

Southern Ontario has both the highest biodiversity and the most human altered landscapes in all of Canada. The Niagara Escarpment of South Georgian Bay retains much of its natural forest cover and intact aquatic corridors. Protecting this region for its biodiversity and natural values supports a local economy and sustainable agriculture and welcomes those attracted to its abundant beaches, ski hills, and forests while ensuring a lasting legacy for future generations.

How will we achieve this?

- Identify priority protection areas based on science
- Advocacy on inappropriate development: Castle Glen & Talisman
- Policy advocacy
- Forging alliances
- Educational events
- Indigenous Relationships
- Youth engagement
- Engaging with local agricultural community
- Community Land Trust
